Q & A

Nick Offerman

The humorist, 44, has a new book out called Gumption

What inspired you to write a second book?

There's no accounting for taste, but people responded favorably to my first one [Paddle Your Own Canoe].

Gumption features "America's Gutsiest Troublemakers."

Like who?

Frederick Douglass, Eleanor Roosevelt, Carol Burnett... They all had spunk.

Which gutsy types would you invite to a dinner party?

Definitely Yoko Ono, that exciting wild card. There's no telling what she'd figure out to do with a toothpick and a couple of napkins.

—PATRICK GOMEZ

'I thought I was doing bad acting. I would just think, "My bull---meter's going off. This screams inauthentic to me.''

—CHRIS PRATT, on his insecurities while filming Guardians of the Galaxy

'Finally I just said, "Listen, I'm 52 [at the time], and I've been on my knee now for about 28 minutes. So I gotta get an answer out of this, or I'm gonna throw a hip out!'"'

—GEORGE CLOONEY, on his proposal to wife Amal

KIM & KANYE'S 1 YEAR ANNIVERSARY

HOW THEY MAKE IT WORK

BY AILI NAHAS

THE TRADITIONAL first-anniversary gift is paper, but of course Kim and Kanye West are far from conventional. On May 24 the couple, in a departure from their signature over-the-top style, chose to celebrate quietly and privately. (Well, other than Kim Instagramming some memorable wedding throwback pics.) “They really are best friends,” says a source close to the couple. And despite more-is-more moments like those “They’re juggernauts,” says pal Gunnar Peterson of the pair (at the Met Gala in May, left, and in a wedding pic Kim posted on their anniversary).

North (complete with a Ferris wheel and tepees), the source says Mr. and Mrs. West are decidedly more low-key when they're away from the cameras. "Kim calms Kanye down when he needs it, and Kanye gives Kim confidence, especially with business decisions. It's a loving partnership." Adds Kim's longtime trainer Gunnar Peterson: "Kim and Kanye raise the bar in everything they do. It all fits." What began as a friendship years ago when Kim, 34, and Kanye, 38, were both in North sets the tone for everything they do," says Peterson. "They're inclusive of her, and they love her and protect her and educate her."

Adds the Kardashian source: "Kim and Kanye love spending as much time as they can at home as a family." As for expanding their glamorous brood? The powerhouse couple, worth a reported $200 million combined, are "trying," says the Kardashian source. "Of course they want more kids. They're hoping it happens soon."

JENNIFER LOVE HEWITT READY FOR BABY NO. 2

IN HER FINAL WEEKS of this pregnancy, Jennifer Love Hewitt is cherishing time with 18-month-old daughter Autumn. "We stayed in a hotel over Mother's Day weekend," says the actress and face of Palmer's line of pregnancy products. "It was awesome, just the two of us!" Next up it'll be 24-hour-a-day diaper duty for Hewitt and her husband, actor Brian Hallisay, both 36, who have never had a night nurse or nanny. "I'm looking forward to having two tiny people to snuggle with," says Hewitt. "It's my favorite thing ever!" —AILI NAHAS

EMMA STONE & ANDREW GARFIELD BACK ON!

Taking a page out of the Ross-and-Rachel relationship handbook, Emma Stone and Andrew Garfield are reunited after a six-week break. The Amazing Spider-Man costars, who began dating in 2012, separated in April; sources cited their hectic work schedules. But now, Stone, 26, and Garfield, 31, have been spotted dining out in Malibu and are staying together at Stone's L.A. place. Says a source: "Everything is back to normal."

The couple grocery-shopped in Beverly Hills on May 23.

Putting a man on Mars is one thing. Getting him home is another. In The Martian—based on the novel by Andy Weir—botanist Mark Watney (Matt Damon) is stranded on the red planet after his crew thinks he died in a storm. It's about “resilience and the optimism to survive,” says director Ridley Scott, who shot the movie (out Nov. 25) in a Jordanian desert. So on top of everything, should Mark worry that there's life on Mars? Nah, says Scott, “he's thinking about how to save his life on Mars.”

Passages

CUSTODY BATTLE

After a three-year fight, Gossip Girl actress Kelly Rutherford, 46, was awarded sole temporary custody of her son Hermès, 8, and daughter Helena, almost 6, who have been living with her ex-husband Daniel Giersch in Monaco since 2012. “We are ecstatic and hopeful that Monaco will respect the California court’s ruling and send the children home,” Rutherford’s lawyer tells PEOPLE.

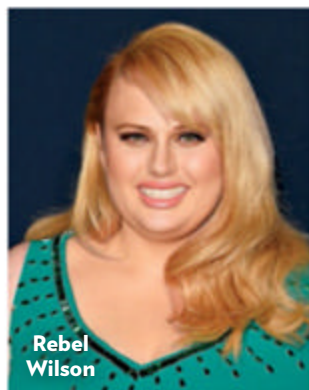

BABIES

Former Marry Me star Casey Wilson, 34, and husband David Caspe, 36, have welcomed their first child, a son. ● Olympian Bode Miller, 37, and his wife, pro beach volleyball player Morgan Beck Miller, 28, welcomed son Nash Skan Miller on May 18. The baby is named after the skier’s late brother.

REVEALED

Pitch Perfect 2 star Rebel Wilson is 35, not 29, as she’s previously claimed. The Australian actress poked

Newsroom star Alison Pill, 29, tied the knot with Bates Motel’s Joshua Leonard, 39, on May 23 in L.A. “Hands down best day of my life,” the groom posted.

AILING

Lawrence of Arabia star Omar Sharif, 83, is battling Alzheimer’s, his son revealed to EL Mundo. “He still knows he’s a famous actor,” Tarek El-Sharif said, but struggles to recall details and won’t act again.

RETIRED

After 33 years of hosting the Late Show,

David Letterman, 68, said good night for good on May 20, in a studio filled with family and friends, including Tina Fey, Chris Rock and Jerry Seinfeld.

CRIME

A body discovered May 23 in the Hudson River was identified as missing kayaker Vincent Viafore, whose fiancée, Angelika Graswald, 35, has been charged with his murder.

A Beautiful Mind Mathematician and Wife Killed in Car Crash

John Nash Jr. was a brilliant Princeton mathematician who spent decades of his life in the grip of severe schizophrenia. His wife, Alicia, was an MIT physics major who supported her husband even as his sanity and their marriage unraveled. After his illness subsided in the 1990s, Nash won the Nobel Prize, and the couple remarried in 2001. But on May 23 their remarkable journey—portrayed by Russell Crowe and Jennifer Connelly in the Oscar-winning 2001 film A Beautiful Mind—came to a tragic end when their taxi crashed on the New Jersey Turnpike, killing both John, 86, and Alicia, 82. “An amazing partnership. Beautiful minds, beautiful hearts,” tweeted Crowe. “My father was a very special and unique person in my life,” John David Stier, Nash’s son from a previous relationship, told PEOPLE. “He will be missed very, very much.” —SAMANTHA MILLER AND HARRIET SOKMENSUER

Meara in the '70s; inset: Jerry, Ben, Anne and Amy in 1999.

Comedian Anne Meara Dies at 85

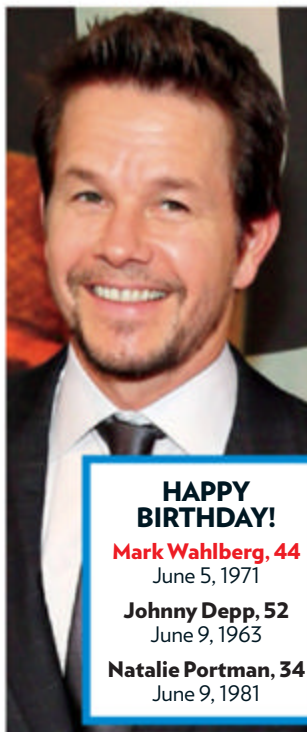

The matriarch of one of comedy's most successful families, Anne Meara, died on May 23 in Manhattan at the age of 85. She was half of the comedic duo Stiller & Meara with her husband of 61 years, Jerry Stiller, 87, and the mother of actors Ben Stiller and Amy Stiller. Over six decades she brought her warm, brassy humor to TV shows and films from The Ed Sullivan Show to Archie Bunker's Place to The King of Queens (alongside her husband) and Night at the Museum (alongside her son). Ben took to Twitter on May 25 to share his gratitude for support during his loss. "Thank you so much for all the kind words about Anne. All of us in our family feel so lucky to have had her in our lives." —JESSICA FECTEAU

COURTS

On May 20, model Janice Dickinson, 60, filed a defamation lawsuit against Bill Cosby, whose team claimed she lied when she accused him of raping her in 1982. Cosby, 77, has denied all accusations made against him by more than 40 women. ● A judge dismissed the domestic violence charge against former Baltimore Ravens running back Ray Rice on May 21, after he completed his pretrial diversion program. In 2014 Rice, 28, was filmed punching his now-wife, Janay Palmer, knocking her unconscious.

PERSONAL STORIES ABOUT GIVING BACK

The 22-year-old singer is speaking out to erase the stigma surrounding mental illness

I have struggled with bipolar disorder for several years now. Also my father, who passed away, had schizophrenia and bipolar disorder as well, and I watched him live a very unfortunate life because of the lack of access to treatment. I just think mental illness is something people need to learn more about. That's why I'm launching the Be Vocal campaign, working with five mental health groups to encourage people to speak up and get help. I'm living well with my mental illness. Now, sure, there are days where it's rough. But because I have the tools in place and the people in my life to support me, I don't deal with those rough days as often as I used to. My boyfriend [Wilmer Valderrama] has been so helpful. You need to share what's happening with the people you are closest to, so you can rely on them for support when times are really, really dark. I want people to know it's okay to ask for help and it's okay to have a mental illness. I'm doing really well. I'm successful, but most importantly I'm healthy and happy, and I do

A DOZEN COOL THINGS TO SEE, HEAR, READ AND DOWNLOAD THIS WEEK

Ripple effect: Gugino and Johnson try to outrun the rumbles.

No. 1 San Andreas

In which we realize Dwayne Johnson probably won't be there to save us when the Earth cracks

No.

MOVIE ACTION Perhaps it's time to call this noble experiment known as "California" a bust and set out for terra extra firma. San Andreas depicts the West Coast shuddering with temblors that kill thousands. But forget the unlucky stiff: Rescue pilot Ray (Johnson) and his estranged wife, Emma (Carla Gugino), need to find their teen

Blake (Alexandra Daddario). Is it seemly to delight in a disaster movie, given recent events? Of course not, but then we can't help ourselves. We love to peer over the cliff's edge, provided we live to tell about it. And San Andreas delivers the jolts—high-rises fall, waves crash, and a ship plows through San Francisco. So do splurge for 3-D... and earthquake insurance. (May 29, PG-13)

No. 2 The Whispers
TV DRAMA “Careful the things you say,” goes a song from Sondheim’s Into the Woods, “Children will listen.” On the money as usual, Steve! A group of vulnerable kids, receiving private instruction from the same imaginary friend, act out in deadly ways. Lily Rabe, so good on American Horror Story, is just as commanding as a watchful FBI agent. Her talent is quite, quite real. (ABC, June 1, 10 p.m.)

Lily Rabe has serious child-care issues.

Kelli Garner as Marilyn and Susan Sarandon as her mother, Gladys.

No. 3 The Secret Life of Marilyn Monroe
TV DRAMA Kelli Garner (Pan Am) stars in this two-part miniseries about the sex goddess’s wretched personal life—in particular her relationship with her institutionalized, mentally ill mother (Susan Sarandon), whose existence was scrubbed out of Monroe’s official studio bio. Garner shows us Monroe’s instinctive intelligence, although she can’t avoid a familiar note of impersonation—it’s hard not to, unless you play Monroe as Elaine Stritch. Sarandon is especially good as a scattered, frightened, hidden nobody—the absolute antithesis of a star. (Lifetime, May 30, 8 p.m.)

No. 4 MKTO, ‘Bad Girls’
MUSIC POP A year after their puppy-love hit “Classic,” the pop duo is singing about a sexy man-eater unafraid “to break all the rules.” In other words, that puppy is now a b---h with attitude. With Tony Oller’s slick falsetto and horn-filled production, this single feels destined to storm the charts. (June 2)

Malcolm Kelley (right) and Tony Oller are MKTO.

David Oyelowo stars in a one-man show.

No. 5 Nightingale
TV DRAMA David Oyelowo (Selma) is Peter, a bright-eyed, tightly wound little man with a big to-do list: Having killed his mother, he fusses about the house making dinner for his dream man. Peter is a gay cliché—part Norman Bates, part Disney princess—but Oyelowo plays him with light, precise detail and zero pathos. (HBO, May 29, 9 p.m.)

I expected changes
with menopause,
but not the pain.

Premarin[®]
(conjugated estrogens)
vaginal cream

Intercourse may hurt after menopause. Premarin Vaginal Cream can help.

Nobody really tells women that intercourse can be painful after menopause, due to low estrogen levels. The problem is unlikely to go away on its own. But there's something you can do. Ask your doctor about Premarin Vaginal Cream. It's a prescription cream that does what no over-the-counter product was designed to do. It provides estrogens, to help rebuild vaginal tissue. When used twice weekly, it can help make moderate to severe painful intercourse due to menopause more comfortable. And that's worth talking about.

Pay as little as $15 for your prescription.* Download your coupon at PremarinVC15.com

IMPORTANT SAFETY INFORMATION:

Using estrogen-alone may increase your chance of getting cancer of the uterus (womb). Report any unusual vaginal bleeding right away while you are using Premarin (conjugated estrogens) Vaginal Cream. Vaginal bleeding after menopause may be a warning sign of cancer of the uterus (womb). Your healthcare provider should check any unusual vaginal bleeding to find out the cause.

Do not use estrogens, with or without progestins, to prevent heart disease, heart attacks, strokes or dementia (decline in brain function).

Using estrogen-alone may increase your chances of getting strokes or blood clots. Using estrogens with progestins may increase your chances of getting heart attacks, strokes, breast cancer, or blood clots.

Using estrogens, with or without progestins, may increase your chance of getting dementia, based on a study of women 65 years of age or older.

Estrogens should be used at the lowest dose possible, only for as long as needed. You and your healthcare provider should talk regularly about whether you still need treatment.

Premarin (conjugated estrogens) Vaginal Cream should not be used if you have unusual vaginal bleeding, have or had cancer, had a stroke or heart attack, have or had blood clots or liver problems, have a bleeding disorder, are allergic to any of its ingredients, or think you may be pregnant.

Estrogens increase the risk of gallbladder disease. Discontinue estrogen if loss of vision, pancreatitis, or liver problems occur. If you take thyroid medication, consult your healthcare provider, as use of estrogens may change the amount needed.

Common side effects include headache, pelvic pain, breast pain, vaginal bleeding and vaginitis.

INDICATION

Premarin (conjugated estrogens) Vaginal Cream is used after menopause to treat menopausal changes in and around the vagina and to treat moderate to severe painful intercourse caused by these changes.

You are encouraged to report negative side effects of prescription drugs to the FDA. Visit www.fda.gov/medwatch or call 1-800-FDA-1088.

Please see Important Product Information on the next page.

This is worth talking about.

vaginal cream

ABOUT PREMARIN® VAGINAL CREAM

PREMARIN Vaginal Cream is a medicine that contains a mixture of estrogen hormones. PREMARIN Vaginal Cream is used to treat menopausal changes in and around the vagina and painful intercourse caused by these changes. You and your healthcare provider should talk regularly about whether you still need treatment with PREMARIN Vaginal Cream.

IMPORTANT SAFETY INFORMATION

What is the most important information I should know about PREMARIN Vaginal Cream (an estrogen mixture)?

- Using estrogen-alone may increase your chance of getting cancer of the uterus (womb). Report any unusual vaginal bleeding right away while you are using PREMARIN Vaginal Cream. Vaginal bleeding after menopause may be a warning sign of cancer of the uterus (womb). Your healthcare provider should check any unusual vaginal bleeding to find the cause.
- Do not use estrogen-alone or estrogens with progestin to prevent heart disease, heart attacks, strokes or dementia (decline in brain function).
- Using estrogen-alone may increase your chances of getting strokes or blood clots.
- Using estrogen with progestins may increase your chances of getting heart attacks, strokes, breast cancer, or blood clots.
- Using estrogen-alone or combined with progestin may increase your chance of getting dementia, based on a study of women age 65 years or older.
- You and your healthcare provider should talk regularly about whether you still need treatment with PREMARIN Vaginal Cream.

DO NOT START USING PREMARIN VAGINAL CREAM IF YOU:

- Have unusual vaginal bleeding
- Currently have or have had certain cancers
Estrogens may increase the chance of getting certain types of cancers, including cancer of the breast or uterus. If you have or have had cancer, talk with your healthcare provider about whether you should use PREMARIN Vaginal Cream.
- Had a stroke or heart attack
- Currently have or have had blood clots
- Currently have or have had liver problems
- Are allergic to PREMARIN Vaginal Cream or any of its ingredients
- Think you may be pregnant

Tell your healthcare provider:

- If you have any unusual vaginal bleeding
- About all your medical problems
- About all the medicines you take
- If you are going to have surgery or will be on bedrest
- If you are breast-feeding

POSSIBLE SIDE EFFECTS OF PREMARIN VAGINAL CREAM

PREMARIN Vaginal Cream is only used in and around the vagina; however, the risks associated with oral estrogens should be taken into account. Serious, but less common side effects include:

- Heart attack • Stroke • Blood clots • Dementia • Breast cancer
- Cancer of the uterus • Ovarian cancer • High blood pressure
- High blood sugar • Gallbladder disease • Liver problems
- Enlargement of benign tumors • Severe allergic reaction

Call your healthcare provider right away if you get any of the following warning signs, or any other unusual symptoms that concern you:

- New breast lumps • Unusual vaginal bleeding
- Changes in speech or vision • Severe headaches
- Severe pains in your chest or legs with or without shortness of breath, weakness and fatigue • Swollen lips, tongue or face

Less serious, but common, side effects include:

- Headache • Breast pain • Irregular vaginal bleeding or spotting
- Stomach/abdominal cramps, bloating • Nausea and vomiting
- Hair loss • Fluid retention • Vaginal yeast infection • Reactions from inserting PREMARIN Vaginal Cream, such as vaginal burning, irritation, and itching

These are not all the possible side effects of PREMARIN Vaginal Cream. For more information, ask your healthcare provider or pharmacist for advice about side effects. You may report side effects to Pfizer Inc at 1-800-438-1985 or to the FDA at 1-800-FDA-1088.

HOW TO USE PREMARIN VAGINAL CREAM

PREMARIN Vaginal Cream is a cream that you place in your vagina with the applicator provided with the cream.

- Take the dose recommended by your healthcare provider and talk to him or her about how well that dose is working for you.
 - You and your healthcare provider should talk regularly (for example, every 3 to 6 months) about the dose you are taking and whether you still need treatment with PREMARIN Vaginal Cream.
1. Remove cap from tube.
 2. Screw nozzle end of applicator onto tube.
 3. Gently squeeze tube from the bottom to force sufficient cream into the barrel to provide the prescribed dose. Use the marked stopping points on the applicator to measure the correct dose, as prescribed by your healthcare provider.
 4. Unscrew applicator from tube.
 5. Lie on back with knees drawn up. To deliver medication, gently insert applicator deeply into vagina and press plunger downward to its original position.
 6. To cleanse: Pull plunger to remove it from barrel. Wash with mild soap and warm water. Do not boil or use hot water.

No. 6 Jason Derulo, *Everything Is 4

MUSIC POP Derulo's fourth LP has a little bit of what its title promises—everything. Thriller-era MJ nods (“Want to Want Me”) are sprinkled in with twerk-tastic club jams (“Pull-Up”). Derulo's not stingy about guest artists, either: JLo, Stevie Wonder and, on the hooky “Painkiller,” the never-enough Meghan Trainor. (June 2)

Derulo cowrote and produced all 11 tracks.

No. 8 Hannibal

The cannibal moves his feast to Europe

TV DRAMA It's just a matter of time before Hannibal Lecter (Mads Mikkelsen) starts planning a menu with fava beans and Chianti: Season 3 of this gory, phantasmagorical classic finds the killer in Venice, where he dines with (and on) art experts. Looking as frail as a saffron thread, former FBI profiler Will Graham (Hugh Dancy) is on the hunt. (NBC, June 4, 10 p.m.)

No. 11 UnReal

TV COMEDY/DRAMA Lifetime—home of the TV movie ripped from the headlines and flung at the viewer—may well reinvent itself with this smart scripted series. UnReal is about the unprincipled ingenuity (you know, lying) required to gin up romance on a Bachelor-like hit. Constance Zimmer (Entourage) is the woman who runs this circus, screaming at her crew in brutal shorthand: "I need loser cam on Manly Rodeo Queen!" (Lifetime, June 1, 10 p.m.)

No. 12 The Best New Books

Judy Blume is back—and on her game! Plus Sarah Pekkanen's engrossing latest and a sun-kissed saga to whisk you away EDITED BY KIM HUBBARD

Sarah Pekkanen Things You Won't Say

NOVEL The shooting of a teenage boy and the damage done not only to the victim's family but also to Mike, the cop accused of the killing, are at the heart of this novel from bestseller Pekkanen. Mike's family shatters under the pressure of the investigation; his wife's anguish and the couple's struggle to survive make for gripping reading.

Peter Nichols The Rocks

NOVEL If you can't summer in sunbaked Mallorca, console yourself with this irresistible tale that moves back in time through 50-odd years and three generations of gorgeous, gifted expatriates and bohemians. As they drink to excess, sail, hook up, betray one another and fall in and out of love amid the olive groves, you'll feel transported.

Judy Blume In the Unlikely Event

FICTION Blume's first adult novel in 17 years takes as its backdrop a string of real-life plane crashes that occurred in 1951 and '52 in the author's hometown of Elizabeth, N.J., killing 116 people. Keeping track of all the characters here can seem intimidating at first, but stick with it. The reward is a deftly written story that captures a town coping with loss and the sudden fame that horrible tragedy brings. You won't want to turn the last page.

NIGHTMARE ON WOODLAND DRIVE

SAVVAS AND AMY SAVOPOULOS HAD A LOVING MARRIAGE, A LUXURY LIFESTYLE AND THREE KIDS THEY ADORED.
THEN A HORRIFYING HOME INVASION SHATTERED THEIR DREAM LIFE FOREVER

By Michelle Tauber Reporting by Steve Helling, Susan Keating and Christine Pelisek

TIMELINE: HOW THE HORROR UNFOLDED

MAY 13

5:30 P.M. Amy Savopoulos calls her husband, Savvas, telling him to come home to watch their son Philip because she has plans, according to housekeeper Nelitza Gutierrez.

9:14 P.M. Someone in the house places an order to Domino's pizza, paying with the Savopouloses' credit card, according to court documents.

9:30 P.M. Savvas leaves a message for Gutierrez telling her not to come in the next day. He says Amy is sick and that another housekeeper, Veralicia Figueroa, is spending the night.

MAY 14

MORNING Figueroa's husband, Bernardo Alfaro, goes to the house looking for his wife. He sees Savvas's Porsche parked outside but gets no answer when he knocks. He then gets a call from Savvas, who says that Amy had gone to the hospital and Figueroa had accompanied her. "My feeling was that somebody was inside," Alfaro later told the local ABC News affiliate. "He said... 'My wife was feeling bad and asked Vera to go with her.'"

9:30 A.M. Gutierrez receives a text from Amy saying, "I am making sure you do not come today." Gutierrez says she calls Amy back but the call goes to voicemail. "I texted her, 'I hope everything is okay,'" says Gutierrez, who got no reply.

MORNING: An employee of American Iron Works drops off $40,000 in cash to the Savopoulos home.

1:24 P.M. The D.C. fire department answers a call for a blaze on Woodland Drive. Fire fighters find the bodies inside the home.

The school year was winding down, which meant Savvas and Amy Savopoulos were looking forward to extra family time with their three kids—and, as many parents do, they couldn't help but note how quickly the children were growing up. At a recent get-together with friends, "we talked about how the kids are getting big," says family friend Jami Fireman. The couple's oldest daughter, 19-year-old Abigail, was set to graduate from high school in a few weeks, and their youngest child, 10-year-old Philip, was finishing fourth grade. "We were sitting outside, talking about summer plans," adds Fireman. "No one seemed stressed at all." Philip, a polite boy who had recently begun racing Go-Karts, was recovering from a concussion, "so he was taking it easy," she adds. "He was telling me he wanted to be a race car driver. He was a terrific kid—just like his family."

It was to be one of the last happy times the family would share. Just three weeks later, on May 14, the bodies of Amy, Savvas, Philip and the family's housekeeper Veralicia Figueroa were found in their $4.5 million mansion near the National Cathedral in Washington, D.C. The quadruple homicide—discovered after the house was set ablaze—shocked neighbors in the well-heeled Woodley Park community, where Amy, 47, and Savvas, the 46-year-old CEO of a lucrative construction firm, rubbed elbows with the Washington elite and were lauded for their warmth and generosity. (The couple's two daughters, Abigail and 16-year-old Katerina, were away at boarding school at the time of the killings.) "You can't really grapple with anything like this," says Fireman. "It is inconceivable. I cannot stop thinking about the family and what those last moments must have been like for them."

As investigators began to reveal details of the case, a terrifying scenario came into view: The victims, authorities say, were held captive for more than

THE HUNT FOR A KILLER

1. D.C. authorities took Wint into custody on May 21 along with several associates, who have since been released. 2. Wint (in a previous mug shot) has been arrested multiple times on charges including assault and receiving stolen property. 3. The couple's 2008 Porsche was found some 13 miles from the house. It had been set on fire.

18 hours, and stab wounds suggest that Philip may have been tortured by one or more killers in order to get money from his wealthy father. “Who would do something so monstrous?” asks Jay Howard, Philip’s racing coach. “This was a nice family. Savvas would have done everything to protect them all. He would have given the thieves anything they wanted. He would have said, ‘Take it. It’s yours.’ That someone did this to them—it’s unthinkable.”

It may have been someone they knew. The home’s sophisticated security system had not been triggered, suggesting the perpetrators had knowledge of the house or had been willingly let in. Someone then ordered Domino’s pizza, with the discarded crust containing critical DNA evidence. Within a week, authorities had arrested a suspect: Darron Dellon Dennis Wint, a 34-year-old, Guyana-born former Marine recruit who had previously done work for Savvas’s firm, American Iron Works. He is charged with first-degree murder while armed. Authorities have said they don’t believe Wint acted alone, and court documents raise questions about the changing story of an assistant who worked for Savvas and delivered $40,000 in cash to the property. The documents state the assistant first told investigators that he or she had been called by Savvas May 14 and asked to take an envelope containing the $40,000—withdrawn from Savvas’s account—and leave it in the garage. Later, according to the documents, the assistant said the request had come from Savvas via text on May 13.

It appears that the four were killed shortly after the cash was delivered to the house on the morning of May 14. Was it ransom, or was it intended for a construction job on a martial arts studio the driven Greek-American executive was building? Authorities aren’t saying, but the use of cash on such jobs is not uncommon, says a project manager for American Iron Works. “That’s how things are done in D.C. construction,” says the manager. “I’m not saying Savvas would give $40,000 cash to just anyone, but he would do it if it was a person he trusts—a contractor who he had worked with.”

Meanwhile, those who had contact with Savvas during the time that he and the others were being held captive are now haunted by the knowledge of the crimes unfolding inside the house (see timeline). Leaving a voicemail for Nelitza Gutierrez, the family’s second housekeeper, on the evening of May 13, Savvas told her not to report to work the next day and that Figueroa, 57, would be spending the night instead. “It was not normal for them to have us stay overnight,” Gutierrez, who worked for the family for 20 years, tells PEOPLE. “I thought, ‘What is this?’ It didn’t sound right.” She didn’t listen to the message until the next day, when she also received a text from Amy warning her not to come to work. “I didn’t go in because they told me not to,” says Gutierrez. “They saved my life.”

The friends and family who knew them best say that both Amy and Savvas had a reputation for looking out for others. “They were a big part of the community and always willing to help,” says Fireman. Attending the University of Maryland together as undergrads, “they were like peanut butter and jelly,” says Terri Jarboe-Farri, Amy’s former sorority sister. “I remember him being

THE VICTIMS

1. "He was the only child at home, and she lived her life around him," Tina West says of Amy and Philip (on April 6 for Orthodox Easter Monday). 2. "They belonged together," Manny Hodak says of Amy and Savvas. 3. Philip "was a very happy boy," say his coach Jay Howard.

driven, and she was always such a bubbly person." Amy converted to the Greek Orthodox church, and they married soon after graduation in a "typical big fat Greek wedding," says Jarboe-Farri. "I remember they did Greek dancing in a big circle. It was beautiful."

As Savvas joined his father, Philip, in expanding American Iron Works into an even bigger multimillion-dollar business, he and Amy also grew their family. Savvas coached his kids' soccer teams, and Amy was a fixture at their exclusive private schools. "She would bring these gingerbread-house decorating kits to the entire grade," recalls her friend Tina West. "She did it every year while her kids were in elementary school. Her whole life was like that. She and her husband were all about their kids."

A martial arts enthusiast and deeply religious man, Savvas was a "generous supporter" of the Greek Orthodox Church, says Mike Manatos, who first met Savvas when they were both altar boys. The couple, who also supported research into childhood concussions after all three of their kids suffered head injuries in sports, attended an annual gathering at the White House for Greek Independence Day in 2014 and once hosted a fund-raiser for U.S. Senator Olympia Snowe at their home. "Washington events are usually stiff, but their kids were right there," says

'Savvas and Amy got along like two peas in a pod. He loved her dearly'

—FRIEND
MANNY HODAK

Manatos. "It was a clear sign that the kids were the center of their lives."

Respected by his employees and colleagues as a fair-minded boss, "Savvas was a once-in-a-lifetime guy," says his longtime business associate Robert Hodge, with whom he founded a welding program to teach struggling workers a new trade. "He was a brilliant man of impeccable character. He knew his employees and their families, and if someone was ill he would ask them about it. He didn't act like a big shot." Adds Fireman: "Some people have a life and other people live a life. He loved life. He enjoyed living."

And he shared an especially close bond with his "mini Savvas," as friends describe Philip. "Amy would say, 'He is exactly like Savvas,'" West recalls. "He walked like Savvas and he had this really firm handshake and this presence already—and he was only 10 years old." After coaching Philip on the racetrack for a few weeks, "I wrote a letter to Savvas saying, 'If I ever have a son, I want him to be just like Philip,'" says Howard.

Figueroa's family, too, remembers her as a bighearted mother of two who worked for years to send money home to her children in El Salvador so they could have a better life there. "The tranquility it gave her to know that we were in a zone that is safer was worth it," her son Néstor Ulises Rivas told The Washington Post. "That's what she had in mind when she persevered with working."

Now grief-stricken loved ones are wondering how to carry on without all of them. "It is horrible to see a family that seemed to do everything right have such tragedy come into their life," says Manatos. Abigail—who posted a Mother's Day message on Facebook thanking Amy for "always believing in me and supporting me"—and Katerina are living with their grandparents. "I can only wish them love and peace," says Fireman. "I don't know how you get over this." ●

A FAMILY'S DARK SECRETS

The famously conservative reality stars seemed to be models of wholesome family life, but they were hiding a terrible past: Their oldest son, Josh, had allegedly molested 5 children

UNDER FIRE

Josh was the executive director of FRC Action, the lobbying arm of the Family Research Council, prior to resigning May 21.

STANDING BY THEIR SON

"We pray that as people watch our lives, they see that we are not a perfect family," Jim Bob and Michelle Duggar said in support of Josh.

F

For nine seasons on their hit TLC reality show 19 Kids and Counting, Jim Bob and Michelle Duggar have steadily grown their family—and their very profitable brand. For some, the Duggars' insulated life was a curiosity; for critics, their intensely conservative political activism was a target; but for millions of devoted fans of all beliefs, the Arkansas family were role models of traditional virtue and family values. With every birthday, every courtship and every prayer circle, they put their distinctive lifestyle and deep Christian faith in the spotlight: Their modest dress (The goal “is to not be drawing attention to places that our eyes don’t need to be going,” Michelle explained), their home-schooling and their strict rules about physical intimacy. (Nothing before marriage other than hand-holding and the occasional “side hug.”) Sharing their views through their wildly popular show—and on five PEOPLE covers—Jim Bob and Michelle offered advice on everything from child-rearing to financial planning while keeping the focus on religion and family. “We will always stand for truth and the values we hold dear,” they said in one Facebook post, “without compromise.”

Now something deeply troubling has emerged behind that wholesome image. On May 20 reports surfaced of a 2006 police investigation in which the family's oldest son, Josh, now 27, was accused of molesting five underage girls. Confronted with the news on May 21, Josh issued an apology. “Twelve years ago, as a young teenager, I acted inexcusably, for which I am extremely sorry and deeply regret,” he said in statement to PEOPLE. “I hurt others, including my family and close friends. I confessed this to my parents who took several steps to help me address the situation. We spoke with the authorities where I confessed my wrongdoing. My parents arranged for me and those affected by my actions to receive counseling.”

After the news hit, TLC drew outrage on social media by airing a marathon of 19 Kids that evening. The next day they pulled reruns of the show. Josh, who is expecting his fourth child with wife Anna in July, also resigned from his position at the Family Research Council, a conservative Christian lobbying group.

Chief among the concerns was the family's seemingly botched handling of the incident. According to the police report, whose authenticity PEOPLE has confirmed, Jim Bob, 49, was first informed in 2002 of Josh's inappropriate behavior—he is said to have fondled the breasts and genitalia of five underage girls, often while they were sleeping—by one of the victims. Josh was 14 at the time; the family did not alert authorities. When another incident followed nine months later, Jim Bob met with the elders of his church and it was decided that Josh would receive counseling. He was sent away for three months to a program conducted by a Christian ministry, in which he was said to be participating in manual labor and intensive prayer. But according to the police report, Michelle, 48, admitted to

BY HER HUSBAND'S SIDE

“[I know] who Josh really is—someone who had gone down a wrong path and had humbled himself before God and those he had offended,” says his wife, Anna.

In November 2014 political activist Josh (at left with GOP presidential candidate Mike Huckabee) led an anti-gay-marriage rally in Little Rock, Ark., which demanded that the Supreme Court not overturn the definition of marriage in Arkansas as between a man and a woman.

WHAT IS NEXT?

The family (earlier this year) are now facing the uncertain future of their TLC reality show.

What Will Happen to Their Show?

TLC has yet to make any concrete decisions about the future of 19 Kids and Counting. For now, the network is no longer airing reruns of the show. “We are deeply saddened and troubled by this heartbreaking situation, and our thoughts and prayers are with the family and victims at this difficult time,” TLC said in a statement.

This is not the first time the network has had to react to scandal. Last October Here Comes Honey Boo Boo was axed following reports that the show’s star June Shannon was dating a man who had been convicted of aggravated molestation in 2004; Shannon’s oldest daughter, Anna, later came forward as the victim.

authorities that the man Josh worked with was not a certified counselor.

According to a source with knowledge of the situation, it was not until after Josh returned from treatment that police were ever contacted; Jim Bob, Josh and a church member went to a state trooper, Joseph Hutchens, whom Jim Bob knew personally. According to the source, Jim Bob reported that the state trooper gave Josh a stern lecture but said that because he had already been to treatment, no further action was necessary. (In a bizarre twist, Hutchens was later convicted for possessing sexually explicit material involving a child and sentenced to 56 years in jail.) An investigation was only opened in 2006 after The Oprah Winfrey Show, which had planned to have the family on for a segment, received an anonymous tip about the incident and informed the Department of Human Services. The resulting investigation was abandoned because the three-year statute of limitations had passed. (A rep for Winfrey did not respond to requests for comment.)

In a case such as Josh’s, authorities should have been alerted right away, says Gail Wyatt, Ph.D., director of the UCLA Sexual Health program. “The story will be submerged if the kid feels overwhelmed or blamed. You need to get the story while it can be told.” Teenagers who have been isolated from their peers may be more likely to act out sexually, adds Dr. Wyatt: “The abuser is trying to make themselves feel better. It’s about power.”

Even if authorities had been alerted immediately, however, it seems unlikely legal action would have been taken. “In a situation where victims wanted to pursue charges, the case would be handled by a juvenile court,” says Laura Killinger, a professor at William & Mary Law School. “But it’s not uncommon for victims to refuse or decline to testify.”

The Duggars have never shied from controversy. From public scrutiny about the safety of having so many children—heightened after the dangerously premature birth of Josie Duggar in 2009, and again when Michelle miscarried her 20th child, whom they named Jubilee, in 2011—to their positions against abortion, evolution and LGBTQ rights, much about the family has been ripe for debate, with the Duggars vigorously defending their beliefs. Last August thousands of LGBTQ supporters launched a petition to cancel the show after Michelle made robocalls to Arkansas voters in which she warned that legislation in support of transgender rights would “allow men—yes, I said men—to use women’s and girls’ restrooms, locker rooms, showers, sleeping areas and other areas” and described “males with past child-predator convictions that claim they are female” who would use spaces designated for females only.

Though their politics are not showcased on TLC, Jim Bob is a former member of the Arkansas House of Representatives, and the family has campaigned for conservatives such as Rick Santorum and Mike Huckabee. (Huckabee offered his support to Josh and the Duggar family, writing that “good people... do regrettable and even disgusting things.”)

Now, the family is rallying around each other and stressing two key tenets of their faith: repentance and forgiveness. “Even though we would never choose to go through something so terrible, each one of our family members drew closer to God,” Jim Bob and Michelle said in a joint statement. They’re also coming to terms with a blow to their mainstream celebrity—and an ugly part of their past. “I would do anything to go back to those teen years and take different actions,” said Josh. Even if they never return to TV, keeping up life in the spotlight is the least of their concerns, says a close source: “They are devastated.”

FAME, ADDICTION, REDEMPTION: TATUM O'NEAL AND JOHN McENROE'S OLDEST CHILD TELLS HIS FAMILY'S STORY

L“Please get me out of here.” It was close to midnight on July 15, 2014, and Tatum O’Neal’s son Kevin McEnroe, then 28, was on the phone saying the words she’d always dreaded hearing: He was in jail after getting arrested for buying coke, morphine tablets and oxycodone on a Manhattan street corner. “I always thought because of the way my heroin addiction looked from their eyes, my kids would never go there,” says the Oscar-winning actress, 51, who has been off heroin since 1999 and clean, she says, since she had a one-night cocaine relapse in 2011. “I was scared for him and brokenhearted.”

Kevin, the oldest of Tatum’s three children with tennis legend John McEnroe, was scared too—but more than that, he was ashamed. Earlier that day he had landed a book deal to write a novel based on his family’s tortured history, and now he was in the very spot where he’d hated seeing his mother so many times before. “I felt like I’d marred my family’s name,” he says. “My dream had come true, and I had torpedoed it.”

Now, 10 months later, they are both in a much better place. Clean since the two months he spent in rehab at the Betty Ford Center shortly after his arrest (the charges were ultimately dismissed), Kevin is celebrating the publication of his novel Our Town, at the center of which is a fictionalized version of Tatum’s mother, Joanna Moore, a beautiful, fragile actress who battled addiction and endured a tempestuous marriage to Tatum’s father, Ryan O’Neal. (Moore died in 1997.) Tatum is thrilled for her son. “I’m the proudest mother in the history of the world,” she says. For both of them, the book represents a kind of exorcism of the patterns of addiction and dysfunction that have played out over three generations of their famously troubled Hollywood family.

“Not believing in yourself—that’s what was passed down to me from an early age more than drugs or alcohol,” says Kevin, confident but wary as he discusses his journey while sipping a beer in the garden of his Brooklyn townhouse. He and Tatum, as he calls her despite her pleas (“Please call me Mom, Kev!”) are teasingly affectionate with each other; he says his novel is “a love letter” to her as well as to the troubled grandmother he barely knew, whom Ryan O’Neal divorced in 1967.

“My father treated my mother horribly—he became a huge star and she didn’t matter anymore,” says Tatum, who’s been mostly estranged from her dad for more than three decades. (Ryan’s rep said the actor had no comment.) Tatum detailed her mother’s subsequent drug struggles and neglect of her and her brother Griffin in her own memoir, 2004’s A Paper Life. “Joanna was looked upon in my family as this cautionary tale, a joke, like, ‘What a screwup,’” says Kevin, “but she deserved more than that. She had beauty and talent. What she didn’t have was belief in herself. I decided to write about Joanna because I felt a kinship. I have that in me too.”

Although Kevin and his younger siblings Sean, 27, and Emily, 24, grew up in privilege on Manhattan’s Upper West Side, the dynamic at home with two larger-than-life parents was emotionally exhausting. After Tatum and John McEnroe’s explosive breakup in 1992, Tatum’s drug problems led to a contentious custody battle that lasted for years. She was in and out of rehab, there were lots of missed birthdays and, says Kevin, one “sad and bizarre” Thanksgiving he and his siblings spent with her in rehab when he was a teen.

On their visits during the custody battle from their home with McEnroe in Manhattan to Tatum’s apartment 10 blocks away, “we were concerned,” recalls Kevin. “Sean slept in bed with her until he was 12 or 13 because he was worried she would leave and not come back. When she started looking thin and unhealthy, it scared me. I’d lock myself in my room.”

Reflecting on those years, Tatum says, “Kevin had to go through a lot of loss with me. There were years my kids didn’t know if I was going to live or die. Now I call him every single day, and I always say I’m making up for lost time.”

BREAKING FREE
“I always wanted to be my own person,” says Kevin (in his writing studio).

His Family in Fiction

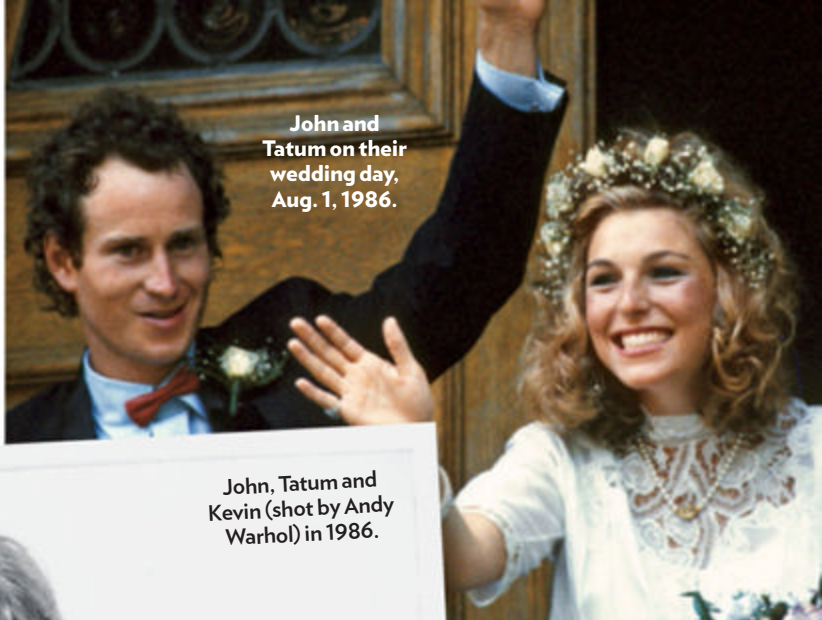

“I said what I wanted to say, and I think it’s honest,” says Kevin, (who has an MFA in writing from Columbia University) of his first novel.

"He was my little prince," says Tatum (with Kevin in 1986).

FAMILY ALBUM

Despite "the bad stuff," Kevin says he has "beautiful memories" of his childhood. Among his favorites: "My mom taught me to shoot pool. She's a great player. She taught me about late '80s, early '90s indie rock, and it's still the music I prefer. We would draw together. She is my taste—the way I understand the world— but still, I definitely have mommy issues."

‘When I saw Paper Moon at 6 or 7, it was the first time a movie made me feel sadness and happiness’
—KEVIN MCENROE

Her children are candid about the lasting effects. “There were times of seeing too much and times I’ve had to distance myself,” says Emily, a former eBay curator now interested in acting. “I remember thinking, ‘How can I fix my mom?’ But we’ve been close since I can remember. I can tell her anything.” Adds her brother Sean, a photographer: “My mom is all heart.”

Kevin credits McEnroe (who has two daughters—Anna, 19, and Ava, 15—and a stepdaughter, Ruby, 29, with his second wife, rocker Patty Smyth) for being a stable presence. “I had to grapple with him for approval,” Kevin admits, “but he was there. He was solid.” Yet the expectations that came with his name weighed heavily on his kids. “When we were playing tennis in high school, my brother and I would sometimes use a different name. I hated the way our last name changed how people treated you.”

Now, with her son shedding new light on the family’s dark past, Tatum says, “I’m the most content I’ve ever been. I forgive myself for my mistakes.” Although she and John didn’t speak for years, he was “really nice” to her at a recent reading of Kevin’s. “I wouldn’t say there is a relationship, but there is respect now,” she says. (She has never had a relationship with Smyth, who she says “didn’t agree with the way I raised my kids.”) Lately Tatum is focusing on her health since being diagnosed with rheumatoid arthritis, which has sidelined her with joint pain for the past year and a half. Eager to return to acting (“I’m not good at much else”), she’s also dating—and reveals that these days, it’s women. “I’m not one or the other,” she says about her sexuality, “but I have an interest in women. They’re gentle and more intelligent than most men I’ve met recently, but I don’t have a steady right now.”

Her extended family remains troubled: Brother Griffin, 50, was sentenced to 16 months in prison in 2012 for a DUI car crash; half-brother Redmond, 30, Ryan’s son with Farrah Fawcett, has a warrant out for his arrest on a parole violation. “I love him, but I’ve never seen a more scary side of addiction,” she says. She’s no longer trying to reconnect with Ryan, from whom Kevin, too, is estranged. “I was never comfortable with him, knowing how he made my mom feel,” he says.

For Tatum, her “sweet children” represent an island of sanity. “I feel good about the way they can talk to me about anything,” she says. And for Kevin, confronting his own missteps has helped him learn to forgive his mother hers. “When I was young, there was this sense that she was choosing drugs over us,” he says. “Real forgiveness came when I realized it wasn’t a choice—like her mom, what she didn’t have is belief in herself. And in writing about Joanna, I understood how it can happen to a good person—and how hard it can be.” ●

- 4½ cups canned garbanzo beans, drained and rinsed
- 1¾ cups buttermilk
- 1 cup chopped chives
- 1½ tbsp. dried dill
- ½ tbsp. garlic powder
- ½ tbsp. onion powder
- ¼ cup finely grated Parmesan cheese
- 1 tbsp. salt
- Juice of 1 lemon
- Olive oil, for drizzling

Place all the ingredients in the food processor. Combine until smooth, and adjust seasonings to taste. Drizzle with olive oil, and serve with chips, vegetables or pita wedges.

Serves: 8 to 10

Prep time: 5 minutes

"I love ranch dressing, but it doesn't have the right creamy texture for dipping," says Hall. "This has the same flavor and is healthier for you too."

- 2 cups loosely packed flat-leaf parsley, chopped
- 1 cup plus 2 tbsp. olive oil
- 1 lb. boneless skinless chicken breasts or thighs
- 12 corn tortillas

- 1 medium onion, thinly sliced
- 1/4 cup crumbled goat cheese or queso fresco

1. To make the adobo, place a large, dry skillet over medium heat. Add garlic cloves (with peels on) and chilies, and roast, turning often, until soft and browned in spots, about 10 minutes for the chilies and 15 for the garlic. Transfer onto a cutting board and let cool. Remove and discard skins from the garlic cloves, and roughly chop along with chilies. Transfer mixture to a blender or food processor. Add the chopped cilantro, parsley, 1 cup oil and 2 tsp. salt. Process, stopping to scrape down the sides if necessary, until nearly smooth, about 2 to 3 minutes. Remove 1/3 cup of mixture, stir in 2 tbsp. of water and set aside. 2. Very lightly dampen 2 paper towels (stacked on top of each other), wrap them around the tortillas, and slide the stack into a heavy zip-top plastic bag. Without sealing the bag, microwave the tortillas for 1 minute. Let them sit in the microwave while preparing the filling.

3. Pat the chicken dry with paper towels and season with a generous sprinkling of salt. In a large heavy-bottom skillet, heat 2 tbsp. oil over medium-high. Place the chicken in a single layer, and add the onions into the open spots. As the chicken cooks, nestle in the onions, turning as they brown. Cook chicken about 5 to 6 minutes on both sides until browned. Transfer chicken to a plate and set aside. Continue cooking onions, stirring often, for 5 to 6 minutes, until caramelized.

4. Transfer the chicken to a cutting board and cut into ¼-in. slices. Add the chicken back to the pan and stir in the reserved ⅓ cup green chili adobo. Cook, stirring often, until chicken is fully cooked through. Season to taste with salt, if needed. Serve the chicken with the warm tortillas, cheese and more cilantro.

A PLACE FOR SOLDIERS' PUPS

DOGS ON DEPLOYMENT HELPS MILITARY MEMBERS FIND TEMPORARY HOMES FOR THEIR PETS WHILE THEY ARE AWAY

When U.S. Army 1st Lt. Gretchen Zilka and her husband, Lt. Benedict Zilka, both 25, were set to deploy to Afghanistan in 2013, they had no place to leave their 5-year-old terrier mix Tango. "We were really stressing," says Gretchen. That's when Dogs on Deployment stepped in. The nonprofit was founded in 2011 by Alisa Sieber-Johnson (now a captain in the U.S. Marine Corps), 27, and her husband, Shawn (a lieutenant in the U.S. Navy), 29, when both were on active duty and had no one to care for their two dogs while they were gone. Since then they have connected about 700 service members with volunteers who board their pets while they are deployed. (The Zilkas chose Amanda Lopez-Askin, 41—an animal rights advocate from Las Cruces, N.Mex.—to foster Tango.) "It's an amazing feeling to me knowing that this has changed people's lives and kept their families together," says Sieber-Johnson. —SYDNEY BERGER

"We're so grateful" to Dogs on Deployment, says Gretchen Zilka (above, with Tango). "Being able to find a one-stop shop where they took care of everything made life a lot easier."

What I Eat in a Day

THE 5'7" SINGER AND ACTRESS, 36, NOW PLAYING ROXIE HART IN BROADWAY'S CHICAGO, SAYS, 'WHAT YOU SEE IS THE NEW ME!'

Breakfast

1 cup oatmeal with 1 whole sliced banana
32 oz. water with lemon, cucumbers, apples and blackberries

Lunch

4 oz. grilled halibut with crisp snap peas, olive oil, lime juice and grated ginger and a baked sweet potato

Tip!

"The omega-3s in salmon are helpful for mood, skin health and weight loss!" says Glassman.

Dinner

Grilled salmon and 1 cup of steamed vegetables with her favorite Kale salad from Houston's Restaurant (includes fine shredded baby kale, herbs and dry-roasted, unsalted cashews, topped with shavings of Parmesan cheese and peanut vinaigrette)

Hydration

16 oz. water with lemon after lunch and again after dinner

Snack

Bowl of mixed fruit (berries, honeydew, cantaloupe)

Total Calories:

1,482

The Verdict "Brandy is spot-on with her breakfast," says dietitian Keri Glassman of nutritiouslife.com. "The high-fiber carbs from oats and berries and the protein lay the best foundation for the day. Glassman adds that the actress could improve by eating one more snack to keep her energy up. "But overall she is an excellent eater with lots of veggies, herbs, lean protein, whole grains and being consistent throughout the day. She is on it!"

MAKEUP

Rachel Goodwin

How did you come up with this style?

We were just in Cannes, where she wore her hair up, so I thought, let's keep it down. It's casual yet still polished.

What's the secret to creating her texture?

I'd blown out her hair earlier in the day, so I started by messing it up! I dampened her hair with wave spray and rough-dried it.

Then I curled random sections, leaving her ends out for a barely there wave.

That coral lip is so pretty!

It's one of my favorite colors on Emma because it works really well with her fair skin and red hair. I wanted her to look glamorous but not overdone, so I only applied one coat to keep it sheer.

Does Emma weigh in on her makeup?

We have a lot of trust. Often she won't even look. I love that I can say, "I found this beautiful color," and she'll be game to try something new.

Proof Is In Our Nature

One Last Thing

Molly Shannon

The SNL alum, 50, stars in the new film Me and Earl and the Dying Girl

Last game I played

I play Truth or Dare with my kids [Stella, 11, and Nolan, 10] and their friends, and they love it. I'll say, "I dare you to go into Coffee Bean and ask for an application." We think it's so funny.

Last home improvement

I put lights all over the front of my house on the trees and the bushes. I think I've been in show business too long because I want everything lit. It really makes everything look so much more gorgeous.

Last time I was starstruck

My kids and my husband [artist Fritz Chesnut] came to the SNL 40th-anniversary show. Stella loves Taylor Swift, and we got to meet her. She was beside herself, and I was like, "We hit the jackpot!"

Last time I was proud

My son was really brave, and I was so impressed because he got up in front of the whole school and lip-synched "Uptown Funk." He was fantastic!

Last time I danced

On my birthday. We were in the kitchen with Stella, and my husband said, "Aren't you going to do Sally O'Malley?" So for my 50th birthday, I did my [SNL] character for my very unimpressed daughter. I think I was in my pajamas.
